Responsible for coordinating theme, subject matter, keynotes, panels and events substituting the Canada Strong and Free Networking Conference (formerly the Manning Networking Conference). CSFN serves as the largest gathering of conservative activists, decision-makers and thought leaders in Canada.

Politics

CAN has been developed as a connector, ensuring that charitable and not-for-profit organizations looking to access pro-bono services are able to be matched with interested professionals who want to volunteer their time and expertise.

The CAN Board of Directors comprises a group of Ottawa-based, multi-partisan young professionals who originate from all across Canada. Each one of us has been active in politics or government at one point in our careers. Except for the lone practicing lawyer in the group, we now operate as public affairs and government relations professionals for a variety of private sector organizations. We have come together to work collectively in order to give back by offering a unique array of skillsets to help not-for-profit organizations achieve their external relations goals. We believe that public policy making belongs to everyone.
